| CORINTHIANS | BROTHERS IN ARMS | A centenary ago, Corinthian FC of London were to many the world's greatest side – sporting geniuses credited with popularising football around the world while championing fair play. Having first toured Brazil in 1910, they were returning in 1914 when news reached them of the outbreak of World War One. They returned home without kicking a ball – dodging torpedo fire en route - and to fight on the battlefields of France, losing more men than any club in history. A hundred years later, the Corinthian name lives on in two very different corners of the world: Corinthian-Casuals FC play beside the Surbiton dual-carriageway as amateurs in the semi-professional eighth tier of English football; while SC Corinthian Paulista – a club inspired by the legendary Corinthian FC visit in 1910 – are Brazil's richest and most successful professional club. |
| | | It tells the extraordinary true story of how South London amateurs Corinthian-Casuals, set-out on a pilgrimage to finally play the historic match that was abandoned on the eve of the Great War. Little do they know that their pilgrimage will take them 6,000km across the world, from playing in front of 30 fans one week to 30 million the next. (2018) |

Against this backdrop rose the city's two football teams, with Everton and Liverpool dominating the domestic and European game for the next ten years, offering Liverpudlians fresh hope and an identity that was not limited to Red or Blue. Their sporting dominance reached a high in 1984 when the League Cup Final between Liverpool and Everton became the first ever all-Merseyside Wembley Final. A third of the city's male population made its way to London allowing 100,000 Liverpudlians to demonstrate civic pride. The league title stayed on Merseyside for eight out of ten years as performances on the football pitch became the city's primary form of opposition. retro footage Ken Loach-directed drama from 1968 about the relationship between fans and footballers, for which he obtained unprecedented access to one of the top clubs of the era, Everton. Footage of matches against Sheffield United, Arsenal and Manchester City is incorporated, as are training sessions and interviews with playing and coaching staff. |

| LIVERPOOL | TWO TRIBES | How Football saved a city - Marked by unrest and economic decline, Liverpool in the 1980s found itself disparaged by many. Against this backdrop rose the city's two football teams, with Everton and Liverpool dominating the domestic and European game for the next ten years, offering Liverpudlians fresh hope and an identity that was not limited to Red or Blue. Their sporting dominance reached a high in 1984 when the League Cup Final between Liverpool and Everton became the first ever all-Merseyside Wembley Final. A third of the city's male |

| LIVERPOOL | BEING LIVERPOOL | Filming of the documentary began days after the FA Cup final defeat to Chelsea at the end of the 2011/12 season. Although they won the League Cup for a record eighth time and reached the FA Cup Final, their form had been hit and miss and they finished 8th, their lowest premier league position since 1994. It resulted in Kenny Dalglish being relieved of his duties in May. Cameras were allowed full access to all aspects of the club and players, on the pitch and training fields, in the gyms, changing rooms and boardrooms, at team meetings and at home. The film captures the recruitment process as the club sought a new manager and the moment when, two weeks later, Brendan Rodgers arrived at Melwood, prior to Liverpool's North American tour. |

| | | A 40 minute film made in 1963 about a week in the life of Swindon Town Football Club. The |
| | | film, entitled 'Six Days to Saturday' is all the more fascinating to watch years later as it's an |
| SWINDON TOWN | 6 DAYS UNTIL SATURDAY | example of the early work of acclaimed film director John Boorman. In 1963 things were very rosy for Swindon Town FC. They'd recently won promotion to Division Two under the guidance |
| SWINDON TOWN | O DATS ONTE SATORDAT | of manager Bert Head who was hailed as a local hero. 'Six Days to Saturday' offers a |
| | | fascinating insight into the Swindon Town team of the day. It shows their camaraderie both on |
| | | and off the pitch, at work and at play, in the days leading up to their next match. |

| 30 for 30 SERIES | BARBOSA, THE MAN WHO MADE BRAZIL CRY | Given the opportunity to host their first World Cup in 1950, Brazil has high hopes of establishing the country as both an economic and soccer powerhouse. To establish the former, they have erected the Maracanā in Rio, the largest stadium in the world, to host the majority of the home team's games. The latter seems a statement of fact given that the team features known stars like Ademir, Zizinho and Moacir Barbosa, widely regarded as one of the best goalkeepers in the world. The pressure on Barbosa and the team is intense but on the eve of the last game, against much smaller Uruguay, it seems poised to deliver the championship. With 11 minutes remaining in the game, everything unravels. Alcides Ghiggla, a small and dangerous forward, tucks a ball between Barbosa and the near post to win the game for Uruguay. Brazil goes into a state of mourning and Barbosa becomes an anti-hero in his own country. Even today, having won five subsequent World Cups, Brazil's wound remains fresh. Barbosa |

| EURO 96 | MY SUMMER WITH DES | Neil Morrissey plays Martin, a massive soccer fan, who we focus on during the 1996 European Championships (Euro '96) which was being played in England. His boss insists that he attend a social event on a Saturday afternoon to prove his commitment to the firm, unfortunately, this clashes with the opening match of the tournament, England versus Switzerland, so Martin promptly quits, insulting his boss in the process. Free to enjoy the football at his leisure, Martin bumps into the mysterious Rosie (Rachel Weisz) who never seems to stick around for very long. During England's victories over Scotland and Holland, Martin's passion for Rosie increases. The tournament progresses to the knock out stages, and England move from the quarter finals where they beat Spain (watched by Martin in a tapas bar) into the semi finals where they meet arch-nemesis' Germany, and crash out during a penalty shoot-out. The recreation of the enthusiasm and fervour of Euro '96 is brilliantly recreated to full effect, and aside from the obvious painful conclusion |
